

sadness to do harm to members of the white race. It should be our aim to avoid doing harm to either. Unquestionably we should be doing harm to the white race, and I think to the Negro race also, if we were to yield to the unjustified demands of radical Negro leaders.

It seems philanthropic and wise, and pleasant, to help the Negro develop his and his children's potentialities but it is folly to consider that he has a right to harm the white man's children.

Racial differences are fundamental and extensive. In determining public policy, it is the part of wisdom to consider all pertinent facts—including racial differences—regardless of assertions that to do so is unchristian. We have had too much of this debauchery of Christianity by using it as a cloak to cover folly and evil.

W. C. GEORGE

Chapel Hill.

"All Pertinent Facts"

Editor of the Daily News:

Throughout a lifetime my relations with members of the Negro race have been friendly and cordial. It has given me pleasure to have opportunities to do good turns for them. It would cause me sadness to do harm to any one of them.

Likewise it would cause me