

reared in the South, I am quite familiar with these race problems which are now plaguing the Southland. It is my honest opinion that the Caucasian people here as well as other places are overly-conscious of their military power.

Seeing that we as a race are militarily exposed, they are able to cover every phase of our lives, even to individual relationship between Negroes and Caucasians. During these protest demonstrations by our students, they are busy applying economic pressure to the working class of Negroes.

~~All of these underhanded methods should be dealt with in like manner. I classify as unreliable any force which can not repel and pursue and which can not pursue and destroy.~~

Answers to our problems are where they have always been, and will stay where they will always be, as long as we look for them around some conference table. When my children ask me about this mess I am going to tell them the truth. Already we have had too much lying.

JAKE NELSON

Greensboro.

Economic Pressure

Editor of the Daily News:

These Negro protest demonstrations are producing some good results, inasmuch as we of the Negro race see how difficult it is to change local customs and practices with no more than a military vacuum.

However, all must understand that there is no such being as racial segregation, because Negroes do not have the independence which is necessary to function as a separate group. It is this point alone which gives Negro organizations and their sympathizers sufficient grounds to interfere into so-called local affairs.

As an ordinary Negro myself and one who was born and