

"Failed To See It"

Editor of the Daily News:

Some time back you had an editorial in the Daily News which I thought was just wonderful. Today I want to quote two paragraphs from this editorial:

"On the answer, depends our leadership and in all probability the survival of the free world. To a world in even greater need of wisdom than of power, we must offer something more than techniques and gadgets, bacteriological weapons and A-bombs. It will not be done by 'men of little minds.'

"To meet the need we must renew our strength by reaching a hand through time to grasp again the spirit that made us great and that is symbolized in Jefferson, Lee, Lincoln and Wilson. America did not become great because she was powerful; she became powerful because she had great men."

Very recently you wrote an editorial, "What Fools We Mortals Be." Did you by any means reach a hand through time to grasp again the spirit that made us great and that is symbolized in Jefferson, Lee, Lincoln and Wilson?

We have men of today who are educated, intelligent and Christian who do not think as you and I think, but remember you said it could not be done by "men of little minds."

Someone has said that we could get so broad-minded that we forget to be high-minded. I wish to thank you for printing the suggestion from Dr. Ralph Herring, pastor of First Baptist Church, Winston-Salem. I consider this a very thoughtful plan for both the white and the Negro.

Everyone should read Acts, 17th chapter and 26th verse, and see how true it fits every human being. God truly created every nation, every race, every tongue and every color and put each in a country of his own. It is only man who has mixed the races and the people, and not God.

I wish the Negro could realize that he can lift himself and make a name for himself right here in the South without "forceable trespass" on any of his white friends.

The South has always been a friend to the Negro, but for some reason he has failed to see it. Again remember that "America did not become great because she was powerful; she became powerful because she had great men."
