

minority." Note, too, that he kept his labels in his briefcase until he arrived in Greensboro, for were he to flaunt this escutcheon on the streets of a more enlightened community some integrated Irishman might feed it to him.

Mr. Worrilow gives a significant clue to the thinking of the racial chauvinists: They are "white Protestants" and not only anti-integration and anti-equal rights but anti-Roman Catholic, anti-Semitic, anti-foreign-born, anti-each other's sects; blissfully certain of their own salvation and just as sure of eternal damnation for those who sprinkle rather than dip, sop rather than sip, worship during the dark of the moon rather than Sunday, circumcise too much or not enough.

In fact, they are anti-anything which jars them in their cocoons of bigoted supremacy. They do well to quote and misquote their little-understood mythology, for the fanatics who embrace this doctrine have for 2,000 years been responsible, by means of religious war, crusade, inquisition, enslavement, forced conversion, burning and missionary invasion, for more misery and suffering than any other plague.

Today, in Africa, in Germany, in the United States, they continue to perpetrate intolerance while denying the meaning and intent of Jesus' teachings of the brotherhood of man, crying for blood while crying upon the blood of the Lamb.

GEORGE H. GARDNER
Greensboro.

Crying For Blood

Editor of the Daily News:

The reader's attention is invited to the letter of William H. Worrilow, Jr., of Lebanon, Pa., which appeared in the Public Pulse columns of the Daily News on Sunday, May 8.

It is well to note that Mr. Worrilow identifies himself both as a "Christian" (he gives his own definition) and as a "white Protestant," and, therefore, the "true