FISCAL IMPLICATION:

There is no fiscal implication on the City's general fund associated with the Cultural Arts Commission recommendation. The art that will be selected for the new Manhattan Beach library will be paid for out of the County's project budget.

The County of Los Angeles has an ordinance that requires all County capital projects to spend 1% of the construction costs on public art. The estimated construction costs for the new library are estimated to be $13,700,000, meaning that $137,000 must be spent on public art for the new Arts Commission representative stated that the City's Cultural Arts Commission will have two representatives on a committee of approximately 10-12 members that will select the public art for the new library.

The City Council, during their November 15th City Council meeting, directed that the two members of City Council already serving on the library ad hoc subcommittee (Councilmembers Powell and Lesser) would also serve on the County's Art Selection Committee as the two voting positions along with two Cultural Arts commissioners serving the Council as expert advisors.
